RETIRED EDUCATOR TALKS ABOUT ROADS

Joe Cook, Former Head of State Teachers College and Splendid Business Man, Describes Roads in Other Sections Built on "Pay as You Go Plan".

Mr. Joe Cook, one of Mississippi's most widely known citizens, an educator of many years' experience and also a good business man and a fine Christian character, passed through Grenada Tuesday afternoon en route to Oxford. Mr. Cook came up on train No. 4, and had an hour between trains here. He came up town and was seen by a representative of this paper, who made sundry inquiries of him about his plans, and especially was Mr. Cook's recent visit to Virginia and New York referred to and many questions asked about some recent press notices which gave his impressions as learned from his trip as to permanent road building. Mr. Cook was not talking for publication, yet this paper feels that what he stated should be passed on to its readers, especially in view of the fact that a road building program is just ahead in this state.

Mr. Cook, as is generally known, was the first president of the Hattiesburg State Teachers' College, an institution founded during the administration of Gov. Noel and over which Mr. Cook presided until this year when he was succeeded by Prof. Bennett. Not only has Mr. Cook been a success as an educator but he is a most successful business man and is credited with being in the hundred thousand dollar class. He is now making his home at Gulfport.

In view of Mr. Cook's ability, his achievements and wide experience, it would seem that his opinion on any question requiring a calculating brain is far above the average in importance.

He states that he spent some weeks in Virginia and that while there he rode over the beautiful concrete highways that come from several directions into Richmond, and that run from Richmond to the Nation's capital. Mr. Cook states that he took pains to go to the records and get the cost of the roads and to acquaint himself with how that state built its roads with the view of passing what he learned along to his fellow Mississippians. He thinks Mississippi should build her roads as Virginia did, that is "pay as you go". He states that the present road revenue laws will bring in from five to eight million dollars annually, and that this is about all the money that can be carefully and wisely spent within one year. He has the impression that a bond issue of eighty millions would furnish opportunities for waste and graft that a pay as you build system would not. He states that he has taken the time to make the calculations and that he is convinced that it would be a fatal mistake for Mississippi to issue bonds which, in the first place, would involve a heavy annual interest charge and besides be a temptation for the grafter.

It is well known that there are two conflicting lines of thought in the state at present. One would issue bonds estimated all the way from thirty to eighty million dollars which would enable the state to launch a huge road building program. The other view is that sufficient money can be derived from the gasoline tax and from car tags, with maybe an ad valorem tax of one mill, to build roads as rapidly as can be done in a business way and to the best interests of the tax payers.

Mr. Cook's views are well worth the earnest consideration of those who count themselves as leaders in the demand for building concrete highways—it is a generally accepted idea among the calculating minds of the state that the graveled highway should be supplanted as soon as possible by concrete roads; to do this means a great saving to human life and also heavy expense bills in car upkeep that comes of the graveled road.

MISS LOCKETT BUYS VOGUE

Miss Elise Lockett, who opened The Elise Shop some time ago catering to the ladies, has purchased the stock of The Vogue, a similar establishment that has been in business in Grenada for some years. Work has been going on for several days renovating and remodeling the interior of the shop on Main Street, just south of Heath Bros. shoe department, and Miss Lockett is now ready to welcome her friends and customers at her new place.

The original name selected for her shop, The Elise Shop, will be retained.

High Court Decides Greenwood Law Suit

Decision of Mississippi Tribunal Settles Litigation of Two Years' Duration—Gives City Right to Install Water Lines in North Greenwood.

Jackson, Miss.—In an en banc decision today, the supreme court reversed the chancery court of Leflore county, in the case of the City of Greenwood vs. S. L. Gwin, et. al.

The supreme court ordered a dissolution of an injunction which had been sustained in the chancery court and which had stopped the city of Greenwood from condemning a right of way to portions of the streets and alleys for the laying of pipes in the streets of a portion of the city of Greenwood.

The supreme court in reversing the lower court dissolved the injunction and dismissed Gwin's bill objecting to the city condemnation.

The supreme court held that the city could exercise its right of eminent domain to install water pipes, mains, laterals, sewers and place fire plugs in the subdivision, denying the contention of Gwin that since the city was not condemning all of each street and alley it could not condemn a portion of them. Judge Ethridge dissented.

In the case of the Y. & M. V. Railroad vs. Planters Oil Mill the court affirmed the decision awarding a verdict of $11,099 against the Oil Mill. Judge Ethridge dissented.

Other decisions in the Greenwood territory were:

W. T. Putts vs. W. H. Caruthers, Jr., et. al., chancery Sunflower, affirmed.

Joe Queen vs. State, circuit Washington, affirmeed.

The case decided in supreme court today was one of several suits involving the Boulevard addition to North Greenwood which has been in litigation for the past two years. In the present case the city has sought in circuit court to condemn a joint right to lay waterpipes in the streets of the Boulevard section.

Mr. Gwin and A. M. Hobbs, as owners of the reservations in the North Greenwood streets, obtained an injunction restraining the circuit court from proceeding in the condemnation suit and the entire matter was thus placed in the chancery court. The chancellor had held that the injunction should not be dissolved, and that city could not condemn a joint right in the streets, without condemning an exclusive right which the owners of the Boulevard restrictions had retained.

In its decision today the supreme court holds that the city may proceed with the condemnation and acquire the right to lay its pipes in the North Greenwood streets.

CLUB HEARS MR. HORTON

By special invitation Hon. Cowles Horton, city attorney, addressed the Grenada Rotary Club at its luncheon Tuesday. The subject of Mr. Horton's talk was "Good Fellowship" and he covered it in his usual thorough and masterful manner. The speaker compared good fellowship to love and said that it was greater than either hope or faith. He used Shakespeare as authority in saying that one must be true to himself first if he would not be false to his fellowman and he stated that to be true to himself, one must first be true to his Maker. He pointed out that the one followed the other—being true to God, to self and to fellowman. He showed how good fellowship depended upon forgiveness and upon the absence of passion and prejudice. He devoted considerable time to explaining how prejudice against one's fellowman and the act of passing judgment upon another could be harshly unjust. Those who heard Mr. Horton could not help but resolve inwardly to so order their conduct in future that they might more nearly measure up to the specifications laid down in his speech.

J. E. Shaw, Jr., member of the committee circulating the petitions in Grenada asking the railroad commission to permit the telephone company to change the present system now in use here over to the flashlight system, reported that he had had marked success in securing signatures in the section of the city assigned to him. Another member of the committee who now has the petition was absent and therefore a full report could not be given.

D. S. Pinkerton, of Clarksville, Ark., was a guest at the meeting.

WANTS TAX PLACED ON FOREIGN OILS

J. B. Perry Appears before Congressional Committee in Attempt to Get Oils from Foreign Countries Put Under Tariff—Says Would Aid Farmers.

Editor Sentinel:

The last week in February, I spent in Washington in an effort to have foreign oils, especially coconut oil from the Phillipine Islands, taxed as they come into the United States.

They now come in free of duty from the Phillipines and last year about 600 million pounds were brought in. This competes with cottonseed oil and peanut oil made in the South.

While I am not much tariff man, there is no use in fighting the inevitable. Everything we buy in the south, or any farming section, is protected by the tariff; and it is now a fixed policy of the United States to protect all goods made in this country.

So if we are to be taxed by a tariff, if we can get any relief ourselves, it looks like the part of wisdom to take all we can get.

After the war an old Confederate said, "There are too many of them for us to whip, so I say let us 'jine' 'em". I have about reached the same idea as to tariff matters, we can not get the tariff reduced on what we have to buy, so let us get it on the things we have to sell.

The tariff on oils will add something like $5 per ton to the value of cottonseed, and while the oil mill industry will not be directly benefitted, if we can help the southern farmers get more money for cottonseed it will help the entire south.

This was the purpose of my trip to Washington, trying to help the cotton farmer if possible to do so.

In the beginning let me say that every branch of the government at Washington knows that the farming industry is in a bad fix and needs some help. Just how to give help is the question.

There is a sincere desire to afford such help as they can give by national legislation; both Republicans and Democrats are more than willing to do this if a way can be found to accomplish it.

We had ready access to any senator or congressman whom we wanted to talk to about farm conditions. We had willing hearers among our Republican friends for any kind of tariff. They seem more than pleased to have the south asking for a tariff on what they have to sell.

When I appeared before the "Ways and Means Committee" of Congress, they seemed much interested in farming conditions and willing to consider tariff legislation to help us.

The information given out was that, at the special session of Congress which President Hoover expects to call about April 20th, there would be no general revision of the tariff, but only such sections as would benefit the farming industry.

Yet the first day we were in Washington, some firms manufacturing umbrellas and parasols from Pennsylvania were asking for a high tariff on these goods. I could not see how that would help farming. I mention this to convey the idea that every line of manufacturers has representatives there, trying to raise prices on everything we buy.

As to general business conditions, there seems to be two distinct lines of thought in the financial circles.

One side insists that we are bound to have at least four years of great prosperity and that while the stock market is very high, there is not much danger in it for the reason that stocks are widely owned now by people who bought them during the past ten years at a much lower price than they now are and that these stocks are bringing a fair return on the cost, hence these people will not get panicky and sell on market breaks. These are the folks who bought stocks outright and paid for them as an investment and are content to hold them.

The other line of thought says that at present market values, stocks will yield less than 3% as an investment and that "call money" in New York is bringing from 8 to 10 per cent. Such a condition can not be healthy or last long when trouble comes.

They think that people trading in stocks on margins are in a most dangerous position; however this has existed for the entire year of 1928 and the big shake-up has not yet come and they do not know when it will come but feel sure it is on the way.

Last, I would hate to be in President Hoover's shoes even though I had his great ability. The farmer expects his business to get relief, labor expects wages to advance and unemployment to cease, manufacturers think world markets will be opened up to their goods and profits to roll in; the consumer is looking for lower prices on what he has to buy.

It is impossible to realize all these things and a superman could not bring all of it to pass. Somebody will be disappointed and unrest will begin.

Mr. Hoover is a great and wise man but we are expecting the impossible from him. His responsibility is too great for human achievement.

Very truly,
J. B. PERRY.

Crowds Brave Rain To See Inaugural

Multiplied Thousands Drenched as Herbert Hoover Inaugurated President of United States in Colorful Ceremonies at Capital City.

Washington, March 4.—The American people today with solemn ceremony placed Herbert Hoover in the highest office within their gift—that of president of the United States.

With a pelting, stinging rain falling, he swore to uphold and defend the constitution of the United States, kissed a verse in the Bible, and began the gravest duty ever demanded of him in his life of far-flung activity, and turning to his inaugural address, he made a pledge to enforce all laws, including the prohibition amendment, to the full extent of his ability.

Into office with this California engineer and orphaned Quaker went Charles Curtis, who had risen from an Indian reservation to the vice presidency.

The two then rode down the historic route from the capitol to the White House, bare headed, rain beaten, but smiling their happiness over one of the most remarkable and enduring ovations given any president and vice president in recent years.

For nearly four hours the thousands stood in the driving rain waiting to do honor to the foremost two Americans.

They filled the long rows of water soaked stands lining the route; they perched upon perilous, slippery ledges of buildings flanking the street. Dripping windows were filled with peering faces, and rooftops were heavy with humanity.

On the capitol plaza, thousands, with water dripping clothes, saw Mr. Hoover kiss a verse in the Bible which sealed his fealty to his countrymen.

That verse said:

"Where there is no vision, the people perish; but he that keepeth the law, happy is he."

And when that solemn ceremony

PERSONAL AFFAIRS REVEALED BY INMAN

Former Chairman State Tax Commission, under Investigation by Legislative Committee, Makes Frank Statement of Private Business Affairs to Show Where Alleged Excessive Funds Came from.

(Crowded out last week)

The former chairman of the state tax commission, Cecil Inman, has given out the following statement in reference to what has been made public by the committee investigating his official acts while he was at the head of the tax commission, which investigation seems to have strongly insinuated that the former commissioner did not act square with the state. Mr. Inman makes a straightforward statement. In due time enough will no doubt be developed for the public to determine the rightness or wrongness of what was done. The investigating committee appeared to think that Mr. Inman's bank deposits were too large considering the salary he received.

Mr. Inman's statement follows:

"As chairman of the state tax mission, I kept an accurate record of all public funds coming into my hands. That record is public and shows that I faithfully accounted for every penny. When I turned the office over to my successor, Hon. Lester C. Franklin, my books were approved by a certified Public Accountant. I hold Hon. Lester C. Franklin's receipt for all money, books, records, paper, documents and property appertaining to the office, together with his certificate that all accounts are in proper balance and all expenditures properly supported by regular vouchers.

"Immediately after my retirement from office, Governor Bilbo caused to be made a thorough,

WANT SUPERVISORS TO EMPLOY AGENTS

Mass Meeting Monday in Interest Extension Work—Petition Circulated Asking Election on Work and Salaries to Be Paid Grenada Demonstrators.

Approximately 125 citizens of Grenada county assembled at the courthouse Monday morning pursuant to a call signed by seventeen voters of the county for a mass meeting of those interested in seeing that extension agents are again employed by the county. Last October the board of supervisors ordered an election to be held to determine the will of the people as to whether or not the agents should be retained for the year 1929. The election was held in November and the majority of those voting expressed themselves as favoring continuing the work in the county. The demonstration agent has been receiving a salary of $3000 annually from the county, supplemented by $1000 of federal funds and the home economics agent was paid $1800 from county funds which, too, was augmented by $1000 from federal funds.

At their December meeting the supervisors declined to re-employ the agents who filled the offices last year and by a vote of three to two reduced the salaries of each to $1200, payable out of the county treasury which, with the amount received from government funds, would mean that each would draw $2200 annually.

The extension forces declined to offer any agents at these salaries, claiming that none could be had at such a low figure.

At each meeting of the supervisors since the question arose a motion has been made and seconded that the county pay the demonstration agent a salary of $2400 and the home economics agent a salary of $1500. The motion was lost each time when put to a vote.

At the Monday mass meeting, E. L. Boteler, district four farmer, presided. One of his first acts was to appoint a committee to invite the supervisors, who were then in session, to attend the meeting but this they declined to do.

Various members of the audience expressed their attitude toward extension work and told of how they felt they had been benefitted by the agents. When the chairman called for all to rise who felt they had received some direct benefit from the agents' work, almost the entire audience stood. Only one man present, J. T. Nason, long one of the county's most prosperus farmers, expressed any opposition to the work. Among other things, he said that he had at one time made an engagement with the agent to come to his farm and that the agent had failed to keep the appointment and that he had offered no explanation for his failure to do so.

W. F. Martin, of district four, told of how much good he thought Grenada cunty had received by employing extension agents and he said he felt that the county is taking a backward step by not having them at this time. He presented a petition requesting the supervisors to hold an election as early as possible to determine the wishes of the people as to the salaries to be paid, requesting that the county agent be paid $2400 and the economics agent $1500. Many signatures were secured and the petition will be circulated over the county for presentation to the supervisors at their April meeting.

The question has arisen now whether or not the board, after the petition is presented, will be obligated to order the election and whether or it will be bound to carry out the will of the voters as expressed at the polls.

PREACHES AT ALL SAINTS

Rev. Boosey Here—Is Called by Congregation.

Rev. J. L. Boosey, Rector of the Episcopal church at Batesville, Arkansas, delivered two interesting and instructive sermons to the congregations of All Saints Episcopal church in Grenada last Sunday morning and evening. He was greeted by almost a full house and made a most excellent impression upon his hearers. His sermons showed thoughtful preparation and were of that character that appeals to the better instincts of men and that arouses a keener desire to work in the Master's vineyard.

It is understood that he has been called to serve this church. He has the call under consideration. Mr. Boosey is a former Mississippian, having served the church at Meridian for several years and was prompted to leave there only because of some afflictions that came to his household. Both Bishops Bratton and Green of the Episcopal church commend Mr. Boosey most highly and these able divines would no doubt be glad to have him accept the call to All Saints church.

"He has saved enough to live in affluence."

"Where's that? Never heard of the place."

MRS. W. T. McGEHEE IS REPORTED MUCH BETTER

The Sentinel feels sure that many of its readers will be glad to know that the news comes from Greenville that Mrs. W. T. McGehee, formerly Miss Sallie Key Brown, is thought to be much better and much hope is entertained now that she will recover. She has been regarded as very seriously ill for several months.

State Supt. Bond Addresses Trustees

Educator Talks at Meeting of Rural Trustees Monday. Makes Plea for Grenada County to Raise Countywide School Levy to 5 Mills.

Hon. W. F. Bond, state superintendent of education, addressed the meeting of the trustees of rural and consolidated schools of Grenada county held at the courthouse Monday morning. The meeting was largely attended and quite a number of citizens and school patrons, besides the trustees, was present.

Mr. Bond's speech was a plea for Grenada county to vote to increase its countywide school tax levy from 1½ to 5 mills, so that the county might share in the distribution of school funds from the state's equalizing fund. He endeavored to show how the rural schools would benefit and said that if the levy were increased every child in Grenada county would receive the advantages of two more months free schooling every year, placing the country children on an equal footing with those in the larger centers so far as education is concerned. He assured those who are now paying a heavier tax than 5 mills in their school districts that their taxes would not be increased. He said that with but few exceptions Mississippi counties generally had raised their countywide school levy.

Lafayette Atkinson; county superintendent, followed Mr. Bond and he spoke for just a few minutes on the need for Grenada county to follow the advice of the state superintendent so that the rural districts would receive the advantages of longer school terms.

JITNEY-JUNGLE STORE HAS BIG OPENING DAY

Everybody was invited, everybody was expected and almost everybody attended the formal opening of Grenada's first Jitney-Jungle retail grocery store, according to T. A. Spain and Mrs. J. M. Cooley, owners of the Jitney-Jungle franchise in Grenada, who Saturday opened their first store in the building formerly occupied by the Saunders Store.

Promptly at 8:30 a. m. Saturday the big red and green store opened its doors amid a chorus of music and from that hour until closing great crowds of visitors and shoppers inspected and approved the Jitney-Jungle system of grocery merchandising with its advertised and guaranteed claim of "Save a Nickel on a Quarter".

The Jitney-Jungle system claims to have the most compact, convenient patented system of displaying merchandise in the world, a system where shopping is made easy and the great privilege of personal selection afforded every customer in such a manner as to make it time saving and economical. The Grenada store becomes a unit in the buying-power of the chain which is now feeding more than a million people in 14 states. With this combination of advantages the management claims to pass up to the public dividends in the way of the best in groceries at a price that is less.

Mr. Spain and Mrs. Cooley, the owners, said: "The opening Saturday received approval even beyond our expectations. As improvements are made in merchandise business must progress and, in adopting the self-service cash system of grocery merchandising, we feel that we can better serve the public, and at the same time make them our partners and co-operators, paying them their dividends in price savings".

FINE GLEE CLUB PROGRAM

A very delightful and entertaining program was given last Thursday evening in the college auditorium by the Grenada College Glee Club under the direction of Miss Ione Mae Liller. She was assisted in her work by Miss Jesse May Gill as accompanist and Miss Lillian McGrath as director of dances. The club consisted of thirty-six well-trained voices. The performance gave evidences of much careful thought and work on the parts both of the young ladies and their directors, the costumes, scenery and dances being particularly effective.

Between the scenes and preceding the program the Grenada orchestra played some popular numbers. The program was divided into three parts; the first comprised several numbers by the Glee Club, two humorous selections by a quartet composed of Misses Almyra Hogan, Allene Hardin, Daphne Pepple, and Naomi O'Reilly, and a duet by Misses Allene Hardin and Daphne Pepple. The second part was an Indian scene carried out in effective costumes and scenery; the club gave several Indian songs, Miss Allene Hardin sang "The Fallen Leaf", and a group of Indian maidens danced while the chorus sang. The third division of the program took place in an old-fashioned garden. The trellis gate, the young ladies in old-fashioned costumes grouped around it and the lighting effects made a very pretty picture on the stage. The numbers consisted of a duet by Misses Naomi O'Reilly and Charlotte Clark, a solo by Miss Daphne Pepple, a selection by the Glee Club and a dance by a selected chorus.

Much credit is due both to the members of the club and their directors for the creditable performance.

TOWNES-KIMBROUGH CO. TO HAVE FORMAL OPENING

In a double page announcement in this issue of The Sentinel, the Townes-Kimbrough Co. is giving an invitation to all its friends and acquaintances in Grenada and surrounding territory to attend its "house warming" which is to be held all day next Tuesday, March 12th.

For the past thirty days, this store says, new goods have been coming in and workmen have been busy painting and refinishing the interior of the establishment until now everything is in fine shape for the all day reception. Flowers will be given visitors and excellent music will entertain them throughout the opening.

The showing of spring merchandise promised in the announcement comes at a most opportune time. Easter, the season of the year when nature herself takes on a new garb, is just a few days away and it is at this time that men and women plan to array themselves in new garments and new frocks to welcome the gladsome spring. Beautiful, new spring merchandise will be on display and the choicest things from many markets may be seen.

The various lines to be carried by the big store are listed in the announcement and one may find there those lines that have made for themselves enviable reputations all over the country.

Some person who visits Townes-Kimbrough Co. next Tuesday is going to receive absolutely free a pair of shoes—no purchase will have to be made and you will not have to obligate yourself in any manner, the shoes are to be given to somebody and it may be you.

The Sentinel hopes that the "house warming" will be well attended and that people from many miles around Grenada will be there.

Master Sergeant Paul R. Nedson of the Army, stationed at Port Totten, N. Y., is a real patriot. He has donated to the government his invention for submarine mine control which it is estimated will save a million dollars in maintenance work in 10 years.

IT IS PRESIDENT HOOVER.

Herbert Hoover, the private citizen, became Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, on Monday, March 4. He is the first man to be named President who was born west of the Mississippi. He is the thirtieth man to take the oath he did. It is the first time that a blacksmith's son has been President. He is the first adherent of the Quaker religion to become President. Like all of his predecessors, save Grover Cleveland, he read his inaugural address.

His address but epitomized his campaign utterances. Through it all runs a fine Christian spirit. The spirit of tolerance, one of the very mudsills of this government, permeates what he said. He took pains to say that every man has a right to think as he pleases and to worship his Maker as his conscience dictates.

He cast overboard the thought that the presidency should be administered in a partisan way in these words: "The animosities of elections should have no place in our government for government must concern itself alone with the common weal". In the very opening of his address he said: "I assume the trust in the humility of knowledge that only through the guidance of the mighty providence can I hope to discharge its ever increasing duties". The closing sentence of the address contained these words:

"In the presence of my countrymen, mindful of the solemnity of this occasion, knowing what the task means and the responsibility which it involves, I beg your tolerance, your aid and your co-operation. I ask the help of Almighty God in this service to my country to which you have called me".

It is the first time that an incoming President ever saw the necessity of devoting so much of his inaugural address to the matter of crime and lawbreaking and the need of tightening the lines for law enforcement. He devoted more time to this subject than to any other. His words should awaken an energetic interest in the citizenship of the country. They should serve as a call for every man to do his duty in this regard and to cease passing the buck on apprehending lawbreakers and doing duty at court to others.

His declaration on prohibition was all that any conservative-minded, thinking prohibitionist could ask.

But back of what was said on this gala day is Herbert Hoover, the man. His public record is convincing proof that he means what he says. Those who have known him for these years, from the time he was a mere boy when left an orphan, on through college and up to this good hour, say that he has lived what he stated on this eventful day.

He has a rugged road ahead of him. Partisan politics will beset him on one side, the greed for office on another, the disappointments of men of his own party on another and organized wealth on the other. Many times, no doubt, he will wish, he were just Herbert Hoover, the private citizen.

Let it be hoped that Mr. Hoover as President will be as successful as he has proved to be in other fields, and to this end he is entitled to the sympathy, the interest and the aid of every patriotic citizen.

CALVIN COOLIDGE, EX-PRESIDENT.

The best wishes of the American people, without regard to party lines or sections, go with Ex-President Coolidge into private life.

He was not a spectacular President. He measured well his footsteps. He used his experience already gained to attain those things that needed to be done. He would not be hurried. He could not be stampeded. He came to the presidency just at a time when the country needed a man of his type. As Calvin Coolidge was as a private citizen, he was as President. His manners were simple. There was nothing about him that evinced a forgetfulness of that rugged training that he received back on the Vermont farm. He preserved well the traditions of his country. He was true to his trust. He served his country wisely and well.

The characteristics of Mr. Coolidge which show him to be a man who was brought up in the way he should go and which show that the teachings of his father and mother shaped the main currents of his life were those homely traits that manifested themselves when he visited the old home and, better still, that he chose to take the oath required for the highest office in all the world before a justice of the peace and that that justice of the peace was his own father.

Calvin Coolidge preserved his integrity. He was true in all things. He has a reverent heart and breathes that spirit which endures when the battles of politics will be forgotten and the perplexities of office are dimmed by the passing centuries.

May the lines of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge continue to fall in pleasant places is the wish of his countrymen.

THE JUDGE OF THE NEW FEDERAL COURT DISTRICT.

Judge Allen Cox, of Baldwyn, a nephew of the widely known and greatly admired statesman, John Allen, was named by President Coolidge towards the end of last week to be the Judge of the new federal court district of Mississippi. Judge Cox comes of noble parentage. His father is himself a great lawyer and an exemplary citizen. The judge bears the record of being all his father is. What part, if any, the fact of Judge Cox's being a nephew of Private John Allen played in his appointment, we do not know. Press dispatches state that Vice-President Dawes interested himself in Judge Cox because of his warm friendship for John Allen. This again but illustrates the value of a good name and what an asset good friends are.

We congratulate Judge Cox. We feel that he will measure well up to the exalted position to which he has been named.

Grenada is growing. Are you growing with her?

EX-GOVERNOR SAYS COUNTRY RULED BY MONEY LORDS.

Former Governor Patterson, of Tennessee, in his "Day by Day" column in the Commercial Appeal discusses from time to time almost every phase of human life. He is a scholarly man. He has been attorney general, governor of Tennessee and a member of congress. At present he is one of the judges of the courts of Shelby county. He is one of the best versed men in statecraft in the country. And above all these things, he is a Christian gentleman. He is imbued with an honest and sincere desire to benefit his day and generation.

It is good to have a man who sits upon the mountain top and who can look at the rising and setting sun, and who is able to epitomize what is past, and to see the clouds as well as the rainbows in the west. This is a day of too much "getting"; never before were material things such dominating and controlling forces in the affairs of the country.

Gov. Patterson says:

The love of money is not confined to the individual. It may be collective and national. It may affect the whole social system, and become an obsession.

The love of money destroyed all the ancient civilizations first within by weakening the fiber of the people and then without by tempting the barbarian with the possession of easy spoils.

It sapped the virility of Rome and now after all the years of her decay she is being reconstructed by the iron rule of a dictator. Have we, too, entered this path that leads to ruin? Has the love of money become the narcotic to our spiritual forces?

Are we erecting here in our country a feudalism ruled by the money lords to whom we pay our tributes? Are we putting a golden crown upon the brow of democracy and are we bending our knees to this new king that our own thrift may follow fawning.

We seem to hear nothing but of money. Men strive for it, political parties promise it each more abundantly, we see the dollar sign whichever way we turn, and it is written large in front of the nation's capitol. We are not yet lost. We have not even reached the point where decay is visible. We have not finished the golden edifice we name prosperity, by which we mean more money.

We are boasting of our wealth and most of the world despises and envies us for the boast. We call attention to our favorable trade balances and our great bank reserves, but we say little of the balance of common honesty, and less of our reserves of spiritual strength.

These are the eggs, we are incubating. They are golden eggs. Can they ever be hatched? At the end shall we, too, be fools?

GOV. BILBO RIGHT IN THIS.

Gov. Bilbo is right in his announced determination not to approve expense accounts for those state officials who may travel on the "Know Mississippi Better Train" this year.

We say this without any regard to politics or any relationship that may exist between former Gov. Murphree and Gov. Bilbo. There's just no business in the taxpayers of the state footing the bills for state officials to make pleasure trips. This has been our position all the while about this train. If these officials want to go, why let them foot their own bills and not draw on the so-called "contingent fund" which comes out of the public treasury. The truth is, the legislature is rather liberal in voting funds for contingent expenses; there ought to be more legal restrictions about how contingent expenses may be used.

Of course the trips are delightful ones and the expense of them to the individual traveler is moderate indeed. But so far as being worth anything to the state of Mississippi in the way of getting newcomers, we believe that we can place on the point of a needle every citizen that has been prompted to cast his lot with us because of what he saw on that train.

It is time that we cease fooling ourselves and get down to our knitting. If one-twentieth of all the "bull" which has been talked by well paid boosters and which has been emblazoned across the pages of our newspapers for the past twenty-five years could be capitalized, John D. Rockefeller would look like 30 cents.

We cannot lift ourselves by our bootstraps. If we will get our house in economic order and sterilize some of our politics, and practice knowing what we are able to spend before we contract public debts, we shall experience but little difficulty in getting new citizens and enterprises that will stabilize our energies and our spasms of prosperity.

DELTA SOUNDS TAX WARNING.

The following from the Indianola Enterprise in the very heart of the delta, sounds a warning from a section that never, until with late months complained about high taxes:

"It looks like it is going to take some terrible calamity to awaken us from our slumber and indifference. Many of our people are now losing out and moving away to other sections and other states and the new ones who move in soon fall into the poor ways and customs of our people and they, too, go broke in the course of time. We MUST insist upon a gradual reduction of our taxes; We MUST cut out a number of useless offices where the people are taxed to pay useless salaries to county and state employees who are not earning their pay: We MUST stop issuing bonds for every imaginable purpose and begin paying off the bonds already issued and maturing year after year. We must stop electing poor men to office simply because they are good "joke tellers" and slick politicians. It matters very little what a fine country this is, unless we can make a living here we will soon have to leave it to those who have been more successful in life and have learned to save some good advantage. No wise business man will buy lands in a community where the people have gone broke trying to make a living. Don't forget this."

HIGH TAX RATE IN CHOCTAW COUNTY.

According to the best figures obtainable, the neighboring county of Choctaw has the highest tax rate of any county in the State. Discussing this condition, the Ackerman Plaindealer says:

The Plaindealer is not an alarmist, but did you know that Choctaw County is paying the highest rate in the State in County taxes, and the burden is too heavy for our citizens to carry. Oh, they say get new people to come into our county and help pay these taxes. That argument would be downright funny if it was not so ridiculous. Why should a man move here to pay over a 100 mill levy when he can get to a neighbor county and pay only 31 mills, probably a majority of our people do not know that this county lost a two million dollar enterprise on account of our high tax rate, nevertheless, it is true. All of our people should join hands in helping to work out the great problems that are before us. With what this county is producing we cannot hope to make any progress with the present high rate of taxation. Think it over.

MUCH BEING SAID ABOUT CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

Much is being said at the present time about capital punishment and many are urging that it is a relic of barbarism, and that its infliction does not deter crimes. In our judgment the trouble is not with capital punishment but with the tardiness of justice and the snail-like methods of the courts. The man who deliberately plans taking the life of his fellow man and the one who violates the person of womanhood should be legally executed.

In times past, capital punishment was made to apply even to some trivial offenses. That was a species of barbarism. In England in the 16th and 17th centuries, there were some two hundred offenses punishable by death and among those was the taking of a loaf of bread or the shooting of a rabbit on the estate of a nobleman. Crime was rampant in Great Britain at that time but it was soon learned that these severe penalties did not serve as a deterrent, so the extreme statutes were repealed. Why, in the state of Michigan today, a widow with several children, is serving a life term in the penitentiary because she sold a quart of whiskey.

DIPLOMA DOES NOT MEAN ONE IS EDUCATED.

Some people think that when a student graduates from a university his education is complete. This idea, of course, is held by those who do not have the correct conception of what constitutes an education. It is their opinion that an educated person is full of information, a great deal like that contained in an encyclopedia.

True education teaches people to think; to find information and to use it. Any graduate from college of twenty years ago who has not added to his knowledge is indeed ignorant today.

Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, very aptly characterized such people when he said, "Even though a man have as many degrees as a thermometer; even though he be graduated with the highest of honors; he will soon be grossly uneducated if he halts his reading and learning with his graduation. Authentic education matriculates us at the cradle and graduates us at the grave. The best thing that the school can do for the student is to waken in him a zest for thinking and the habit of reading. He should not let his brains get rusty after graduation."—Hoard's Dairyman.

YOU HAD BEST WATCH YOUR DOG.

Dog owners in Grenada County you had best muzzle your dog as the law requires you to keep an eye on him. The law requires that dogs be muzzled from the first of March until the first day of September.

The stray dog is a menace. He is a nuisance. And the worst of all, the season for rabies among dogs is here, and that may mean that your child or your neighbor's child may be bitten by a dog and, death, certainly days of the most excruciating anxiety, may come and maybe a sorrow that will follow one to the grave.

The game warden is checking up on the dogs. He and the county health officer appeared before the board of supervisors this week and urged that the sheriff make it a point to give the unmuzzled and stray dog proper attention. So then if the sheriff kills your dog, do not blame him.

We are told that dogs killed only very recently somewhere about five hundred dollars worth of sheep for one of the county's citizens. If we are to foster stock breeding, we must see that dogs are not at large.

HUBERT STEPHENS WON AGAIN.

"They said" in the senatorial campaign in Mississippi last year, that Senator Stephens was "stalling" on getting the bill passed which he sponsored for another federal court district in Mississippi, and that it would never get through the lower house of congress. But the Senator won. The bill passed; it was approved by the President and then the President named Judge Allen Cox, chancery judge and a Democrat, to be the judge. The question of another district has been before congress for some years. Another district was needed. The work of the whole state is too heavy for one man. Again we congratulate Senator Stephens.

I want to be your friend, my son,
Your comrade and your guide;
Day after day, till life is done,
I want you at my side.
I need you, son, and you need me,
No matter where we go.
Our bond of love will always be
The dearest thing I know.
—Lawrence Hawthorne.

JEFF DAVIS TEAMS WIN BASKET BALL TOURNEYS

In a basket ball tournament held here last Friday for the south, part of the North Central Athletic and Literary Associations, the Jeff Davis consolidated teams, boys and girls, emerged victorious.

The Jeff Davis girls won only after the hardest kind of a struggle with Winona, but the Jeff Davis boys were the class of the tournament from the very beginning. Presenting a well balanced machine, the rangy lads of this team worked a fine floor game and proved themselves experts at working the ball under the goal for easy shots.

Maden, star forward of this team, was high point man for the tournament, ringing up 30 points in the final game, to put him far in front of his closest rival.

In the opening game the North Carrollton boys defeated Holcomb 25-20. The game was close all the way and neither team had any decided advantage. Ability of the North Carrollton boys to sink their long shots was the deciding factor in this game.

In a game featured by the individual playing of members of the two teams, Coffeeville defeated Gore Springs 19-10. Neither team displayed any organized offensive, but Coffeeville showed several potential stars.

A gallant little band of yellow clad players from Paynes flashed a brilliant attack to make the Jeff Davis boys extend themselves for the only time during the tournament. Although defeated 30-26, the lads from Paynes put up a beautiful exhibition of floor play. Although often unable to penetrate the defense of their larger opponents the Paynes team stood off and sank their long shots for many points. The little fellows were dangerous whenever they had the ball and proved themselves worthy opponents for finalists.

In this game Coffeeville was unable to stop the rush of the Jeff Davis boys, and lost 30-15. Coffeeville put up a game fight, but couldn't stop their superior opponents.

It was a bewildered and befuddled North Carrollton team which attempted to stem the rush of the high-powered Jeff Davis team. Jeff Davis rang up a field goal from tip off, and after that the Carroll County team seemed unable to get together. Jeff Davis scored almost at will, and ran up the top-heavy score of 64-9.

The Winona girls presented a fast and shifty team, which got the jump on the Grenada girls and defeated them 26-13. The Winona forwards, aided by fast center play, got many shots at the goal, but missed frequently.

The Jeff Davis girls played a fast game to defeat Paynes 30-15. The Paynes girls fought hard, but were outclassed by their heavier opponents.

The Winona girls continued to set a fast pace for the tournament by defeating Holcomb 36-21. Holcomb was unable to break up the well-organized play of the Winona team.

In the final game the Jeff Davis girls, having drawn a bye in the previous game, were fresher than the Winona team and won by a score of 26-22. This game was the feature of the girls' play and was fast and furious all the way and the outcome in doubt until the final whistle.

"I am in the transfer business, and sometimes when I would be hungry and ready to eat, I would have a call and would have to eat later. Then I would eat too much or too hurriedly. This would cause indigestion. After I started using Black-Draught, I found it did me a world of good."

CAR TAX DEDUCTION EXPLAINED BY A. A. A.

Auto Owners Allowed Income Tax Slice.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Deductions from the gross income allowed car owners under the regulations of the Bureau of Internal Revenue on account of automobile ownership and operation were outlined in a statement broadcast by the American Automobile Association today.

First, the car owner may deduct from his gross income all sums paid during the calendar year in the form of registration fees, drivers' licenses, state personal property taxes and municipal taxes.

Second, the gasoline tax may be deducted in all cases where it is a "consumers tax" under the state law, but not where it is specifically enacted as a "distributors' tax."

Third, the interest on money borrowed for the purchase of an automobile is deductible, irrespective of whether the car is used for business purposes or for pleasure. If the taxpayer keeps his accounts on a cash basis such interest will be deductible only for the year in which paid. If accounts are kept on an accrued basis, interest may be deducted as it accrues.

Fourth, if a passenger car is used wholly for business purposes, all expenses incident to maintenance, including depreciation at the rate of 20 per cent per annum, may be deducted. Where the car is used "chiefly," or more than 50 per cent for business and incidentally for pleasure, the expense may be deducted on a pro rata basis.

Fifth, loss sustained by reason of damage to a passenger automobile while being used for pleasure is deductible. The loss, however, must be an actual loss to the person claiming the deduction. In other words, if it is compensated for by insurance or otherwise, it is not deductible.

Sixth, the bureau has ruled that where a motorist paid damages for injury to a pedestrian, such amount is deductible, provided at the time the injury occurred the car was being used for business. There has never been a decision, however, on whether a fine paid by a motorist might be deducted as a business expense, where at the time the expense was incurred, the car was being used for business or professional purposes.

Seventh, loss when sustained where an automobile used for business purposes is traded in for a new car may be deducted.

Eighth, the amount paid for insurance on automobiles used for business purposes and also the amount of finance charges on a purchased car which covers interest and risk on the loan, but not the amount covering the premium on insurance to protect the finance company's interest.

The A. A. A. points out that in no case is a loss deductible where it is sustained when an automobile used for pleasure is traded in for a new car. At the same time, it is stated that in no case is the amount paid for an automobile used for either business or pleasure allowed as a deduction. This is regarded by the bureau as a capital investment, but is subject to claim for depreciation when used for business purposes. In the case of purchase by a farmer for strictly farm use, only the expense incident to operation is deductible, as in the case of any other business or professional use.

How can a motorist determine whether or not he is entitled to the advantages set forth in the clause dealing with deduction of maintenance costs for cars used wholly for business? On this point the national motoring body says:

"When a passenger automobile is used primarily for professional or business purposes, and incidentally for pleasure, ordinary expenditures for maintenance and repairs may be prorated according to use, and deducted, provided the car is used 'chiefly' in the pursuit of a business or profession. 'Chiefly' is interpreted by the bureau to mean more than 50 per cent. If business constitutes a minor usage and pleasure the major part, the expense cannot be prorated or deducted. If the chief use is for business, the items of depreciation, gasoline, oil, repairs, chauffeur's salary, garage rent, as well as any other legitimate expenses, may be prorated according to the usage and the portion applicable to business purposes deducted."

Growing Paternalism

No one has ever known of a temporary government bureau or commission that has not become permanent. There are now more than 40 commissions, boards and independent establishments, in spite of the design of the fathers that all executive functions of government be transacted by the great cabinet departments.

Ten years ago a National Screw Thread Commission was created to standardize screw threads. Three times Congress extended its life and finally, growing weary, made it permanent—and it's still growing.

The Bureau of Indian affairs in the Interior Department is weighted down with highly-paid officials whose names fill page after page of the official register so that one wonders who gets the lion's share of the $13,500,000 appropriated annually, the bureaucrats or poor Lo?

Most of this work is in the interest of some individual industry. The Agriculture Department spends an armful of money trying to ascertain for the benefit of manufacturers why and how many men wear rayon and silk socks and why they are not all wearing union suits.

The Commerce Department propagates frogs and frog legs and the modest oyster is the subject of 20 government publications designed to boost the industry. The people are taxed to propagate fish for the benefit of the fish trust and the government shuts down its oil wells to help the poor Standard, furnishes capital for ocean shippers, employs 9,000 men to tell the farmers where they are wrong, and issues a score of publications devoted to instructing mothers in the best methods of raising babies—and all editors are spinsters.

One of the newest and largest of these paternal activities is the survey of foreign industries, which has met a decidedly hostile reception among industries who believe their cost figures are their own.

This is a great paternal institution—but the government must keep out of business except for the benefit of some individuals.

A corporation with millions of capital has been organized to finance aircraft installment paper, much as automobile and electric paper is now financed. It is estimated that the 1929 sales of airplanes will approximate $40,000,000.

Sugar manufacturers are demanding a tariff increase of one cent per pound on foreign sugar. This means an increase of $100,000,000 a year to the American consumer. Only two or three years ago sugar manufacturers were granted permission to use a cheap adulterant to meet competition, and the retail price of sugar immediately advanced more than one cent per pound. Truly, we are becoming a paternal nation.

Mr. Dabney Phillips, formerly a progressive farmer of Beat 2, this county, has recently moved, with his excellent family, to Grenada. He is an active and wide-awake gentleman, and we heartily welcome him and family here.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Johnson, Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, their daughter, Miss Hadley E. Johnson, was married to Mr. G. W. Fisher, of Memphis, Tenn., the ceremony being performed by Rev. Church, in his most pleasing manner. The marriage was a quiet, home affair, to which had been invited relatives and a few special friends. The ceremony was a very impressive one and was in keeping with the solemnity that usually prevails at home weddings.

BAPTISM AND THE LORD'S SUPPER

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 3:13-17; 28: 19, 20; 1. Cor. 11:23-29.

GOLDEN TEXT—This do in remembrance of Me.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Things God Wants Us to Do.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Two Things God Wants Us to Do.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Meaning of Baptism and the Lord's Supper.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Place of Baptism and the Lord's Supper in the Christian Life.

I. The Baptism of Jesus (Matt. 3:13-17).

1. His request (v. 13).

This was in act, if not in word. He came from Galilee to Jordan to be baptized of John.

2. John's hesitancy (v. 14).

He perceived something in Jesus which impressed him with the unfitness of such an act.

3. Jesus' explanation (v. 15).

He insisted upon John's compliance on the ground that it was a method of fulfilling all righteousness.

4. The Heavenly acknowledgment (vv. 16, 17).

As Jesus emerged from the waters the heavens were opened, the Holy Spirit descended, and a voice declared, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

II. The Apostolic Commission (Matt. 28:18-20).

1. The authority of Jesus (v. 18).

God gave Him all authority in heaven and on earth.

2. The Commission of the Apostles (vv. 19, 20).

(1) It was to teach (make disciples of) all the nations (v. 19).

(2) Baptize believers (v. 19).

This baptism, the divinely appointed way of making public confession, is to be in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, indicating that the believer has been brought into definite relationship to each member of the Holy Trinity.

3. Teach obedience (v. 20).

Profession is not enough; it must issue in obedience.

3. The all-sufficient promise (v. 20).

The Lord told the disciples their difficulties would be great after He had gone away, but promised them the presence and fellowship of the all-powerful Savior and Lord.

III. The Lord's Supper (I Cor. 11:23-29).

1. Its Institution (v. 23).

(1) Time.

It was on the night of the betrayal of Jesus, just after the betrayer had been announced.

(2) Circumstances of.

It was in connection with the eating of the Passover (Matt. 26: 26).

(3 The elements used. Bread, doubtless common bread of the Passover feast. The cup, fruit of the vine.

2. The Significance of the Lord's Supper (vv. 24-26, cf, Matt. 26:26-28).

Jesus took material things and made them to be symbols of His own body and blood.

(1) A memorial of the Lord (Luke 22:19) to be observed in remembrance of Him.

(2) To show the Lord's sacrificial death (v. 26). He did not die as a hero, or as an example of unselfish devotion, but as a substitutionary ransom.

(3) It is a guarantee that our sins are forgiven (Rom. 4:25).

(4) It symbolizes the believer's reception of Christ (I Cor. 10:16).

(5) A forward look to a completed redemption (I Cor. 10:26).

3. Qualifications for participation in the Lord's supper (vv. 27-29).

(1) A proper apprehension of its meaning (v. 27). Eating and drinking unworthily primarily refers not to the demerit of the communicant, but his failure to grasp its meaning and importance.

(2) Church membership (I Cor. 11:18-22).

The Lord's body is the church, which is composed of regenerated men and women united to Jesus Christ as head and to each other as members of that body by the Holy Spirit.

3. Orderly walk.

Conduct which disqualifies for participation in the Lord's supper:

(a) Immoral conduct (I Cor. 5: 1-13). It is most perilous for one who is guilty of immorality to approach the Lord's table (I Cor. 11: 30). Sickness and death are often visited upon such.

(b) Heresy (Titus 3:10; I John 4:2, 3).

(c) The one who stirs up a schismatic strife (Rom. 16:17) in the church should be excluded from the Lord's table.

A Sensible Plan

TO REDUCE YOUR

Automobile Expense

A large percentage of Mississippi's gas-tax revenue must go for the maintenance of graveled roads, leaving an insufficient amount of money for new construction. By paving the main trunk-line highways NOW, probably seventy-five per cent of the maintenance cost of these roads will be saved.

The dividends from paved roads will come to every citizen. They will reduce the cost of operating motor vehicles. They will make it easier and cheaper to move crops. They will make it easier and cheaper to trade. They will improve church and school attendance. They will attract more visitors to our State. They will better our social life by reducing distances and banishing isolation.

If Mississippi can build more paved roads without increasing taxes, isn't that the common-sense thing to do?

By issuing bonds for paving these trunk-line roads, we can have these roads to rent at once, reduce our growing maintenance costs, and reduce the cost of operating automobiles. The present income from license fees and gasoline taxes will pay off the interest and principal of the bonds, without any increase in property taxes.

REMEMBER, under this plan the automobile and truck owners, exclusively, pay for this paving—with their gasoline tax and license fees.

"Not Taxes But Road Rent"

Think it over! Talk it over with your representatives in the Legislature! Mississippi needs paved roads!

Hoover's Head Is Full Size Larger Than Lincoln's, Hat Chart Shows

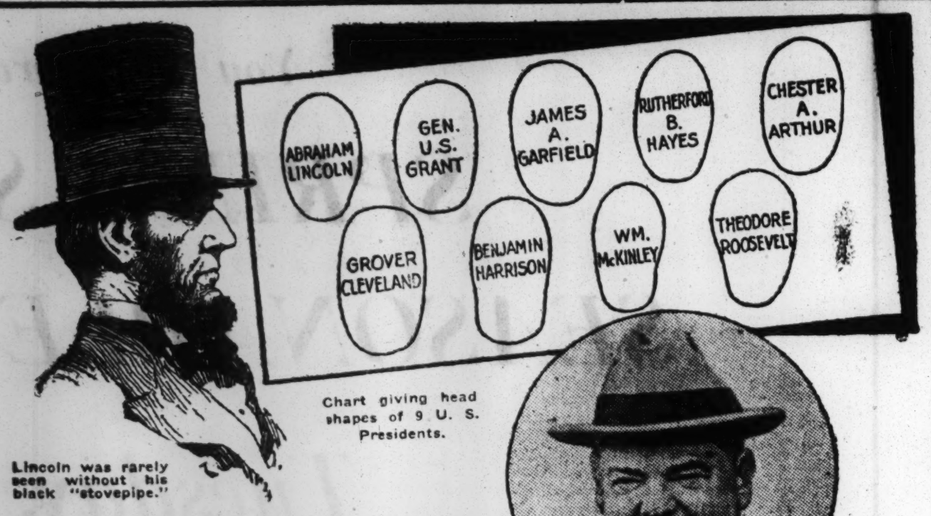

Chart giving head shapes of 9 U. S. Presidents.

Lincoln was rarely seen without his black "stovepipe."

Herbert Hoover has discarded his dark felt hat for a grey fedora.

A Study of the Head Sizes of Our Presidents Provides Interesting Information About Their Heads and Hats.

CORRESPONDENTS who have spent much time in describing President elect Hoover's double breasted blue serge suit have overlooked, his friends say, the Californian's most obvious sartorial effect—his grey felt hat.

Mr. Hoover has forsaken almost entirely the dark felt hat of other years—a style for which he showed partiality on most informal occasions. During the summer months the President elect changes to a stiff American straw and, and of course, on formal occasions wears his silk topper.

It is no secret that the President elect does not take kindly to the high silk hat, just as he does not take kindly to anything stiff or formal in business relationships. Some early pictures show Herbert Hoover in a black derby. On rare occasions he has been seen in a rough finish fur felt.

Mr. Hoover has no bumps or protuberances on his head as has Al Smith. Al, it will be remembered, once told a municipal court judge that the reason he wore his hat on one side of his head was because it hurt to wear it absolutely horizontal.

Mr. Hoover's head compares favorably as to size with the heads of former occupants of the White House.

Stylists of the John B. Stetson Company of Philadelphia have assembled some interesting "head facts" about our former Presidents as well as about other notables of history.

Measured in eighth's, Mr. Hoover's seven and a quarter is a size larger than Abraham Lincoln's, and a size smaller than Ulysses S. Grant's, according to Stetson officials. Of the eleven presidents about whom information has been secured, Rutherford B. Hayes takes first honors in small sizes with 7 1/16. James A. Garfield had the largest head and wore a 7¾ hat. William McKinley and Calvin Coolidge are credited with size 7⅛. Grover Cleveland and Benjamin Harrison each wore a size 7½ hat. Warren G. Harding's size was 7⅜, while Chester A. Arthur wore a 7¼ hat.

Johnson's Head Irregular

Lincoln's head is described as small, well shaped and almost a perfect oval. The general character of the contour pointed to firmness, caution and the domestic virtues. President Johnson's head was larger and more irregular with a big bump of concentration. Grant's head was also large and wide across the front showing special genius for construction and generalship.

That the appearance of heads may be deceiving is seen from a comparison of the measurements of Cleveland's and McKinley's skulls with those of the other Presidents. Cleveland's hat size was supposed to be very large, but in reality it was not as large as that of Harrison's. McKinley, who seemed to have an abnormally large skull, actually had a small one. It was, however, extremely long and had a pronounced bump of cautiousness.

"T. R." Had Conscience Bump

Some of the statistics the Stetson Company has compiled run true to popular conception, while others are at variance with what the layman is prone to believe. For instance, Joseph Hume, the philosopher, required an 8⅛ hat, while the size of the head of the former German Emperor is listed as 6¾.

Probably the late Theodore Roosevelt never heard of an inferiority complex, yet phrenologists insist that the formation of his head showed a tendency to despondency. They also state that Teddy had a big conscience bump.

Mr. Hoover's frontal development is pronounced. It conforms with the orthodox theories of phrenology as to the proper shape of a highly trained executive's cranium

PAVED HIGHWAYS OBJECTIVE

The Mississippi Creamerymen's Association has launched a definite campaign of education for the purpose of selling the idea of paved highways to the people of Mississippi.

The Creamerymen hold a unique position in the business realm in that they are closely allied to agriculture and industry in Mississippi.

This organization has adopted newspaper advertising space as the principal means of furthering the campaign. The message of better highways is being spread so that more people may come to the realization that if Mississippi is to advance the advancement must be made over hard-surfaced highways. This thought is paramount in the campaign.

Another angle of the campaign is that of finances. W. H. Becker, secretary of the Mississippi Creamerymen's Association, has pointed out that Mississippi is paying for hard-surfaced highways yet is doing without them. The trouble with the situation in the fact that the bulk of the road expenditure is being spent for maintenace of gravel roads. The enormity of the cost of maintenance is such that it overlaps what would be the actual cost of constructing hard-surfaced highways. Communities that are using graveled highways pay out in maintenance every few years sufficient money to build hard-surfaced highways. To the end that this system may be changed, and that Mississippi may have paved roads, the Creamerymen's Association has launched this campaign and has sent this message abroad through the byways, both rural and urban, in Mississippi.

QUIETNESS, AIM OF MAKER, ACHIEVED IN MODEL A FORD

The elimination of noises—from motor and from road shocks—was one of the things to which Henry Ford and his staff of engineers devoted particular attention in the design and construction of the new Model A Ford car.

The motor of the Model A Ford is one of the quietest, most nearly vibrationless engines that modern automotive engineering has developed. Its designers provided for that feature with parts that are made of the finest possible materials and that are machined to fit exactly. Balanced crankshafts and flywheels, precision-made bearings, aluminum pistons, unusually well designed and constructed valves and a particularly efficient lubrication system, all contribute to the quiet, smooth performance of the Model A engine.

The same careful design and construction in body chassis and running gear have also eliminated most of the other sources of noise in motor car performance. All body parts of steel stampings that might develop noises have reinforcing beads which tend not only to prevent squeaks and rattles, but also increase strength and durability. Panels and frame sections are welded and riveted together wherever there is possibility of the body wearing, due to uneven road conditions. Where bolts are needed in the final assembly of large units of the body, strips of rubber or other anti-squeak material is used between the sections. Sound deadening material is used in many places throughout the body interior. Fender squeaks are prevented by double-ply leather tape between the fender and body. The same material is used where cowl and body join. Hardwood fillers are used in all body sills. Rubber cushions are placed at all points where the body is bolted to the chassis.

All the experience of twenty years of automobile design and construction have been employed to make the Model A Ford one of the quietest, smoothest cars ever built.

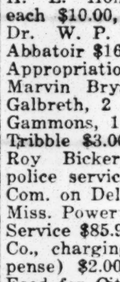
PAINS In Side and Back



"I HAD BEEN miserable for a long time. My health was poor, and I suffered a lot from weakness. At times, my strength was so little that I could not stand on my feet. I would have to give up and go to bed. My sides and back hurt dreadfully.

"I grew discouraged, for I could do so little. I worried about myself, and almost gave up hope of ever being strong and well. I could scarcely lift a bucket of water. My housework went undone, for I was not strong enough to do it.

"After I had taken Cardui for a little while, I began to feel better. I grew stronger, soon found that I could do my work with less effort, and the pains in my back and sides left me. I think Cardui is a wonderful medicine. My health has been excellent since then."—Mrs. D. L. Beckner, W. Main St., Salem, Va.

The Human Side of Big Business

Dr. John Thompson Dorrance, of Campbell Soup Company, Visions Centralized Kitchens to Feed the Whole World

By EDGAR MELS

John Thompson Dorrance, President of the Campbell Soup Company, and a notable figure in the field of scientific preparation and preservation of foods, was born in Bristol, Pa., fifty-five years ago, and has devoted his entire adult life to the preparation and manufacture of condensed soups. A graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Goettingen, Dr. Dorrance is distinguished as an Officer in the French Legion d'Honneur. In addition, he is a member of innumerable clubs and societies.

Dr. Dorrance is married and has five children and only one hobby—an innate desire to promote the health of the mass of people in America.

J. T. Dorrance

"THE most human contribution which big business can render to the people is to save them as much labor as possible and in this way give them more time for recreation, for study and the pursuit of happiness," said Dr. John Thompson Dorrance, Head of the Campbell Soup Company. "If we can save the housewife the bother and trouble of cooking soup by substituting a product as good or better than she can make at less cost, we have done our little bit towards helping humanity. I can vision the day when the whole world will be fed from centralized kitchens; when the housewife will be able to look after her children better—perhaps it will give her more time to play and do the things she always wanted to do—she will certainly have less objectionable work to carry out. And then perhaps more inventive genius will devise dishes which will not have to be washed, or that will be so cheap that you can throw them away after every meal."

Dr. Dorrance speaks from practical experience. After his University training he returned to Camden, N. J., and began work in his uncle's cannery at $7.50 a week. He was assigned to a remote corner of the factory to conduct experiments and investigations, but he had brought an idea with him—condensed soup—and he experimented until he had perfected the product.

He realized at the outset that he had some twenty-five million competitors in the housewives of America, all of whom—or perhaps most of whom—prided themselves on their cooking. Gradually the opposition was worn down by the high quality of the product coupled with the trend of the times for quality with convenience in foods, and the victory lay with Dr. Dorrance.

At the time Dr. Dorrance joined his uncle's company it was manufacturing some two hundred food products. Gradually, as the doctor rose in his official position, he induced the corporation heads to abandon everything except soups, with the result that the company is now making twenty-one different kinds of soups and satisfying the soup-desire of the civilized world.

Dr. Dorrance, desiring to insure the perfection of his recipes, pursued his studies in some of the most famous kitchens in the world. The Café de Paris and the Restaurant Paillard, in Paris, were two of his training fields where he learned much about the delicate flavoring of soups. The chefs of Paris elected him an honorary member of the Societe de Secours Mutuels des Cuisiniers de Paris, a distinction he shared with the late King Edward VII, the only other foreigner to whom it has ever been awarded.

On September 11, 1900, he was elected a Director and Vice-President of the Company. In 1902 he was made Chairman of the Property Committee; in 1905, Chairman of the Purchasing Committee; in 1909, Chairman of the Sales Committee. "If you had to start life all over again, what would be your recipe for eventual success?"

"Two things. Hard work as a matter of course. The second—produce something better than your competitor whether it be canned soup or just labor. There can be no general recipe for success in life."

STATE LEGION COMMANDER MAY SPEAK IN GRENADA

W. D. Owens, state commander of the American Legion, is expected to visit Grenada at an early date, possibly March 19th, to address the ex-service men of Grenada county. Local ex-service men are talking of a banquet in the visitor's honor but definite arrangements have not as yet been completed for his visit. Full details will be announced in a later issue of The Sentinel. When he does come to Grenada, every ex-service man in the county should make arrangements to hear him. The commander has some interesting facts to make known to the ex-soldiers, facts of which they are not now aware.

The following extracts from an address delivered by Mr. Owens at a legion meeting are just some of the things he will have to say and The Sentinel ventures to say that one-half of the things listed below were unknown to the average ex-service man. What the commander said, in part, follows:

Naturally, you as a legionnaire, want to render a real service to the ex-service men of your community. What better service could you render than to explain to the veterans of your community, the benefits provided for them by a grateful government and see that they get the benefit of the things they are entitled to? Are you sure that every veteran of your community understands that the United States government, in recognition of their war time service offers absolutely Free of any cost whatsoever the following benefits:

FREE hospital care.
FREE doctor's care.
FREE surgical service.
FREE nurse care.
FREE medicine.
FREE physical examinations.
FREE X-Ray pictures.
FREE electrical treatments.
FREE treatment for every known disease.
FREE meals and FREE room while in the hospital.
FREE transportation to government hospitals.
FREE return trip home.
FREE and unlimited hospitalization.

All of the above is offered to the veterans of the world war for the rest of their lives, regardless of whether or not ailment or disability is incident to War Service.

If disability is of service origin, compensation will be paid in varying amounts, from $10.00 to $100.00 per month, according to the degree of disability.

Opportunity of securing adjusted compensation in the form of a free paid up life insurance policy, with value up to $1687.00.

10 per cent preferential on employment in the Federal Civil Service.

In a life time, the above FREE government service would cost approximately $5000.00.

With these facts before you to serve your buddies you ought to be eager to impart it to them and at the same time bring them into the American Legion. The first thing on our program, as it has been from the very inception of our organization, is adequate service to the disabled ex-service men. We, as an organization, have offered ourselves to the disabled, to the needy and homeless child of the veteran, to the people as a whole, without thought of any reward, save the accomplishment of our purpose which is, as you know, service to God and Country. No purpose is higher than that.

OVERALL MAKERS EXPECTED TO COME HERE SATURDAY

The overall manufacturers with whom Grenada business men have been in correspondence for several weeks are expected to come to Grenada Saturday for a final conference looking to the erection of an overall factory in Grenada. It is not thought that there is any doubt but that work on putting the building in shape to begin manufacturing will be started at a very early date.

ILLINOIS MAN DROPS DEAD

Glen Hilsabeck, a man apparently about 45 years of age, dropped dead as he alighted from the northbound Panama Limited Wednesday evening in the Grenada depot. He had boarded the train at Canton en route to his home in Mattoon, Ill. and was slightly complaining at the time. He suffered all the way to Grenada and when the train reached here, Dr. R. A. Clanton who had been summoned, was there to meet him. As soon as the physician saw the man's condition he advised him to leave the train and enter the hospital here. As he was being assisted from the train, Mr. Hilsabeck complained of blindness, his body slumped and he was dead. Acute dilation of the heart was given as the cause of his demise.

The dead man weighed about 325 pounds. He is a man of family and his relatives were communicated with at once. His remains were turned over to a Mattoon undertaker Thursday at noon by Garner Bros. who took charge of the corpse Wednesday night.

SCHOOL LITIGATION DECIDED BY SUPREME COURT

The supreme court of Mississippi on last Monday handed down a decision reversing the judgment of the circuit court of this county in the case of W. M. Yeager vs. W. D. Merritt and rendered judgment for appellant. This litigation grew out of an attempt by certain citizens in the north eastern portion of the county to attach themselves to the Big Creek consolidated school district just across the county line in Calhoun county. A casual reading of the press reports of the decision carries the idea that those behind the school movement failed to get the consent or approval of the board of supervisors. It is expected that the matter will come up in another form.

FOREST PROTECTION EXTENDED

Beginning with 11 states, federal co-operation in forest protection has been extended to 38 states, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The forestry co-operation now in effect is carried on under the Clarke-McNary law of 1924, which provided for federal, state and private co-operation in the protection of timberlands from fire, in the distribution of forest planting stock, and in additional work in farm woodland management.

A survey of the progress made in the 17 years of co-operation since it was first launched under the Weeks' law in 1911 shows that the area of state and private forest lands protected from fire has been extended to more than 200,000,000 of the 381,000,000 acres needing protection. In spite of this growth there is still a large acreage to come under protection.

Last year the total area burned over on protected land was only 2,784,450 acres as compared with 4,754,580 in the preceding year. Damage was reduced from a total of $15,048,260 in 1926 to only $4,297,400 last year on protected lands. The area burned over last year on lands not under protection was 35,561,480 acres, and in 1926 it was 19,561,480 acres. The damage on unprotected lands mounted from $11,864,060 in 1926 to $29,088,200 last year.

Nearly 60 million young trees were distributed to private owners last year largely at cost. New York and Pennsylvania led in the number distributed.

ching and detailed examination only of the books and records also of outside and attendant s.

t has never been charged that re the state of Mississippi one ay.

The investigating committee at first session adopted a secret ion, closed door policy, which ld have prevented me from meeting any of the insinuas in the so-called Wooten rt. The house of representatives, realizing the injusand unfairness of this atde, immediately passed a retion in direct terms instructing committee to hold open sess and to give me the opportty to be present in person or ttorney. The purpose of course g to open the doors of all the tings so that the blessed sunlight of publicity could be given to all facts.

"Following the adoption of this resolution, the committee held another secret session, and then announced that I would be allowed to be present, but that I would not be allowed the right to question any witness or to offer any testimony or evidence in my behalf.

"The house of representatives realized that I was a private citizen, my term of office having expired, and that if I was not permitted to furnish evidence concerning the affairs of my office to the committee, no matter how grave an injustice was done me, my lips would be forever sealed and I would have no method of officially getting the truth before the public. They, therefore, promptly passed another resolution directing and instructing this committee to give General Knox and myself the right to cross examine witnesses and to offer evidence before the committee in explanation of any matter up for consideration.

"Under these direct commands from the house, the committee was supposed to give me the opportunity to be present at each meeting. Notwithstanding these instructions, the chairman of the committee recently published notice that the committee would meet on Monday, February 4, and then instead of meeting on Monday the 4th, he convened the committee in session on Saturday, February 2. Neither myself nor my lawyer were notified of this meeting, and not knowing that it was to be held, we were naturally not present at the meeting.

"Up to this good day, five months after the starting of the investigation, I have never been offered an opportunity to produce any evidence or testimony.

"At the meeting on February 2, notice of which neither myself nor my attorney were given, Charles J. Moore, accountant in the revenue agent's office, employed by the committee as an expert witness, swore to alleged facts pertaining to my personal and private bank accounts during my official term.

"In the beginning of this investigation, I cheerfully furnished the committee with written authority to examine my every bank account and record. I gave the names of each bank where I had transacted business. I was solemnly promised that a complete audit of all transactions would be made rather than fragmentary extracts selected to be used against me.

"Despite this solemn promise Mr. Moore swore before the committee that I had accounts in only two banks in Jackson, naming the Merchants Bank and the Capital National Bank. He also swore that I had deposited in these two banks $42,000 more than the combined amount of salary I had received and the money I had borrowed from banks. The entire inference to be derived from his testimony was that the sum of $42,000 came into my hands from unlawful or at least suspicious sources.

"In order to refute these unjustified and untruthful insinuations, made at a meeting of which I was not even notified and to which I had not been invited, I now find it necessary to make a most thorough and exhaustive revelation of my most intimate personal and private business affairs during my term of office. I do this cheerfully because I have not been interested in a single financial transaction which is not legitimate, honest, open and above board and which will not stand the most searching investigation.

"Mr. Moore swears that the only banks in which I deposited money are the Capital National Bank and Trust Company, Jackson. That is not true. I have had an account in the First National Bank of Jackson since 1920, which account was active during my entire term of office, and I so informed Mr. Moore and the investigating committee in open meeting. Mr. Moore further stated that I deposited $42,000 in the Capitol National Bank and the Merchants Bank and Trust Company in excess of my salary and money borrowed by me. That statement also is untrue.

"In order to make a complete disclosure and demonstrate the errors in the testimony of Mr. Moore, I have listed in my detailed report to the committee my deposits in all banks by months. During my term of office of four years I deposited in the Capitol National Bank, $31,709.22; in the Merchants Bank and Trust Co., $22,902.39; in the First National Bank, $10,842.97; a grand total of deposits of $65,545.59.

"During the same period I borrowed from the following banks on my personal notes, the following sums:

Capitol National Bank	$18,500.00
First National Bank	700.00
Merchants Bank and Trust Company	7,801.15
Deposit Guaranty Bank	2,750.00
Jackson State National Bank	1,650.00
Rankin County Bank	8,100.00
Citizens Savings Bank	2,775.00
Total money borrowed	$42,276.15

"My salary for four years amounted to $18,125.00. The state paid me for traveling expenses, $2,028.85. Thus, the total amount of money received by me from loans, salary and expenses paid, amounted to $62,930.00.

"In addition to these receipts, I show in my report $23,367.00 which came to me from the following sources:

Profits sale Smith county land	$1,770.00
Lots sold C. C. White (used to buy lands)	5,000.00
Sale house and lots to Farris (gross)	5,000.00
Profits sale Bolivar county land	200.00
Profits sale Gulfport lots	200.00
Cash refund (McGee partnership)	1,475.00
Retirement fund (U. S. Civil Service)	239.66
Profits on bonds	472.50
Cash (Bolivar county land sale)	533.00
Commission (Frankinson loan)	300.00
Option money returned (Bridges)	250.00
Payment returned (Kahn property)	625.00
Proceeds of bonds sold	7,201.12
Total	$23,367.08

"Thus you see that I borrowed $42,716.15; my salary and expenses paid me amounted to $20,153.85, making a total of receipts of $62,430.00 from these sources. I deposited $65,454.59. Subtract the above receipts from the total deposits and there is a difference of $3,024.59, instead of $42,000.00 as sworn to by the committee's auditor, Mr. Moore. I have already shown in detail above itemized receipts from various sources, amounting to $23,367.08. Subtract the difference of $3,024.59, as shown above, from this $23,367.08, and you have not only accounted for this difference, but I show persons and resources from where I received $20,342.49 more than my total deposits, none of which can be questioned.

"Every figure used in this statement and in the report filed with the committee is taken from records in the respective banks mentioned herein and these records are open to the committee and will be furnished whenever they desire them".

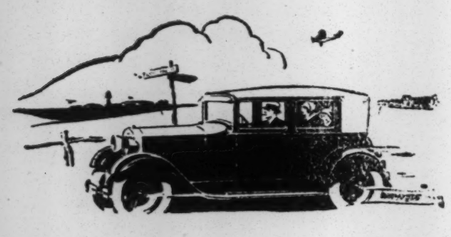
Tires for the new Ford are specially made to give long wear



WHEN the new Ford was designed, it was immediately apparent that a new tire would have to be made to match the car's performance. It was distinctly a new problem, for here was a car with quicker acceleration, greater speed and more braking efficiency than any car of similar size or weight.

So that every Ford owner might be assured of maximum tire mileage at the lowest cost, the Ford Motor Company devoted many months to research and experiment in conjunction with the leading tire manufacturers.

As a result, certain definite specifications were developed for tires for the new Ford. These specify cords of certain strength and texture, a large volume of tread and side-wall rubber, sturdy non-skid design, and reinforced plies for protection against bruise breaks—all the strong features of construction formerly considered for only the largest tires.

Great care also was taken to secure the best riding qualities in connection with the transverse springs and the Houdaille shock absorbers.

Though the Ford tires are designated as 30 x 4.50, they have the resiliency and air space of much larger tires because of the drop center rim of the steel-spoke wheels.

For best results, the tires on the new Ford should be kept inflated to an air pressure of 35 pounds and checked regularly to insure this pressure all the time. This is important. Low inflation breaks down the side-walls of a tire. By causing overheating, it also destroys the rubber that acts as an insulation, with consequent separation of the cord.

At the end of each 5000 miles, when you have the front wheels packed with grease, it is a good plan to have the wheel alignment checked. This will prevent premature wear.

When punctures come, as they will with any tire, you will find the Ford dealer particularly well-equipped to make repairs quickly and at small cost. See him, too, for replacements. Then you will be sure of getting tires built specially for the Ford car according to definite Ford specifications.

Negroes Need No Jail

The press compliment accorded Mound Bayou, a strictly negro town, where no white man lives, and managed by negroes in all official relation, is a credit to our race. The past conduct of our group is so well established in that town that there seems to be no need of a jail for the future punishment of criminals. The jail house is being demolished to provide for an office building for a more advanced civilization. It is an evidence that the negro race is becoming more lawabiding. The daily press news also shows that the crimes of the negro are growing less each year and his misdeeds are not now shown in big headlines as once was the case. The records of the courts all over the country indicate a decrease of crime. There are fewer negroes in jail, fewer negroes being convicted of crime, in this state than for many years past. These are splendid showings for an illiterate environed group. We can, if we will, be a pattern for our superiors in the commission of crimes.

Let Us Get Together

One of the greatest drawbacks to our race, is being so far apart in our social, economic, commercial and industrial life that to our mind, we will not be able to make much headway unless we set to work to improve this condition. We have some religion, some education, some social ethics, and then some other things that go in a way to link us up with the changing conditions. Some of us who have been observing conditions for a few decades of the past, and too, the present trend of things, would here and now sound the note of warning that the future holds no good for us unless we wake up at this, "the switch", wipe our eyes and begin to look about us for the landing we are to make. The church and the schools are the factors in the equation that give the final solution to the problem. The minister in the pulpit, the teacher in the school room both have an important part to play in this work of readjustment. Getting our people to thinking and acting in unity for the uplift of the race is no small job, but it is to be done if we are to get our proper place in the struggle of life. If our ministers will occasionally preach a short sermon on the necessity of unity and cooperation they will be able to help mightily in the work. We need some heaven here on earth, (doing something and being something) before we can hope to enjoy the fulness of heaven after leaving here.

LIMITATIONS AND LAMENTATIONS OF THE FARMER

There was given to me a thorn in the flesh. For this thing I besought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me. And he said unto me, "My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness." Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities that the power of Christ may rest upon me. Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distress for Christ's sake: for when I am weak then am I strong.

These familiar words from Paul came to us over the radio last evening as we listened in on the services at Orchestra Hall in Chicago. The speaker took these words of the gallant hero who fought a good fight and kept the faith, to introduce his discussion of the uses of limitations. He said that Paul was in some trouble or some difficulty, and he had asked the Lord to take it away and relieve him. The Lord would not do it. He recognized that in meeting his own trouble and pain and difficulty, Paul would gain strength and courage. The Lord is the wise father who may desire to fulfill every wish of his children but knows that to do so will wreck their lives. He withholds as well as gives that his children may grow strong in character.

Of all men, the farmer is best able to recognize this truth, for he has so many illustrations of it. He must be out in wind and storm as well as in the sun. He must exercise his body and from this effort he gathers strength and health. Quack grass may be his "thorn in the flesh." Shall he spend his time in lamentation and discouragement? Its eradication means hard work, unceasing vigilance and endeavor. It is no easy task, but those who win through will tell of better crops than if they had not been forced to extra effort in cultivation.

Some folk look on the care of dairy cattle as a "thorn in the flesh." It does require labor, and confining labor, for 365 days in the year. Night and morning, every day, the cows must be milked and cared for. If one looks on this alone the thorn will produce suppuration in the flesh and there will be much distress. However, if the job is done there will be no days of idleness with the resulting empty pay envelope. Contentment reigns even if the returns are sometimes meager. Then again, the proper feeding of cows, the "thorn in the flesh," will require the growing of such crops and the handling of the fields in such manner as will be best for the soil and increase its productiveness. The thorn will be still there with its daily reminder of milking, feeding, and care, but its hardships will be forgotten in the effort it has called forth and in the results achieved.

And so we might continue with other illustrations from the farm of adversity turned to profit. Have not most successes been built on character developed through trial and tribulation bravely met? All folks have their "thorns in the flesh." They may not always be apparent to the onlooker, but they are surely there. It only remains to be seen how they have handled their thorns. Do they lament or do they seek to overcome their limitation? A poor orphan boy, son of a blacksmith, will shortly be inaugurated as President of the richest nation in the world. Thomas A. Edison, a train boy at 12 and without formal schooling, is now as the Wizard of Electricity and foregathers with those other poor boys of former days, Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone, and John Burroughs. There was Roosevelt, the nearsighted boy whose thorn in the flesh was a frail body. He never became a great athlete, but he did become reasonably good at many sports and became a leader of millions.

"There was given to me a thorn in the flesh." I will not lament. I will take pleasure in my infirmities; for when I am weak, then am I strong. My failures, my disappointments shall be the spur to my endeavor and in meeting my difficulties with a brave heart I will build sound character.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Old Ways to New Business

Who would gainsay the truth of the statement that we who care to do so may profit by the experiences of others?

Happy, then, is the man who has a merchandising problem and is wise enough to follow in the footsteps of someone who has faced and solved the same problem with direct mail advertising supplementing other forms of publicity.

Copy the other fellow's advertising? No indeed! But it's only good business judgment to copy the general outline of his plan.

For instance, one of the old and tried methods of marketing a product more quickly and in greater volume is to mail reprints of newspaper publicity that is scheduled to appear at an early date or has recently appeared.

This doubles the force of the impression, brings the message a second time to the eyes of the prospect, and convinces him as to sincerity.

hose who heard Mr. Bond en- d him from the very begin- g. He spoke with an earnest- and sincerity that made each everyone present feel that the and just thing to do is for the nty to give the boys and girls the rural and consolidated ools the same rights as are now g enjoyed by the city school dren and that it is right and for the counties of the poorer ions to do their part in making e things possible and to co- rate with the state department an equal basis in creating the per finances for the schools.

he school enumeration has n completed in the main. I t to thank the teachers, driv- patrons and pupils who as- ed in putting this work over. s quite a task to secure a list more than 7000 names of child- in the county. It is the opinion the officials perhaps the best most complete enumeration of educable children of the county t has been taken. The list is v being made into three books the use of the schools, county state officials. Thanks for the istance of all those who had a t in making the task a success.

he election of trustees was ducted in practically all of the al and consolidated schools on Saturday at 2 o'clock. Most the returns have been made. A is now being prepared and will ready for publication at an ly date. It is hoped that the stees elected at this time will niliarize themselves with the neral laws governing the several rds of trustees.

At the close of school each cher will make a term and com- te report of her term's work. is is a very vital part of the year's record for it is from this report that the superintendent secures the data for making the report of the county to the state department of education. It is hoped that each teacher will make every effort to have this in good shape by the day on which she makes her report.

Pathe Sound Truck in Front of Capitol at Washington

RIGID tests in the field, under actual working conditions, of various types of vehicles, proved to Ray Hall, editor of Pathe Newsreel and Pathe Sound News, that the Dodge Brothers trucks are the only ones suitable to carry the R C A Photophone apparatus used in recording "sound" in newsreel work. One of the Dodge Brothers trucks, a 1½-ton model, equipped with the sound apparatus, is shown above in front of the Capitol in Washington, D. C., just after a record was made of President Coolidge at the White House. Other units for use throughout the U. S. will be installed in trucks of this make.

TODAY'S WORLD TOPICS
Writer's Service, Ridgway, Pa.

A recent hearing before the Secretary of the Interior developed a conflict between railroads and airlines on the question whether the National Parks are to be opened to commercial airlines. Railroads contend that these lines should be compelled to build their own landing fields outside the parks, just as the railroads have been compelled to do.

The order of Chicago's police commissioner to "close every joint in the city" is conclusive evidence that crime and liquor are inseparable. Long before prohibition became operative a very large proportion of crime was traced to the gin mills where criminals were turned out without molestation. The crime wave is not the result of prohibition—it continues to be the result of liquor.

The suggestion that Congress include in the fifteen and subsequent decennial censuses inquiries as to employment and unemployment, and tabulation and publication of the information obtained is one of the most practical plans for obtaining this much-needed information. Representatives of every state should give it immediate and hearty support.

Man reaps what he sows, unless he be an amateur gardener.

World's Greatest Wheat Grower

Thomas D. Campbell of Montana, world's champion wheat grower has returned from Russia where he refused an offer to take entire control of the Soviet's 15 million-acre farm project. Mr. Campbell says the Soviet's plan to purchase 400 millions worth of farm machinery during the next three years, will develop the most wonderful agricultural project in the world's history.

Mr. Campbell's Montana farm is composed of 40,000 acres of wheat and 10,000 of flax. Outside of an occasional jackrabbit that wanders in from the surrounding unbroken prairie, the "World's Greatest Wheat Farm" has no live stock on it. The farm produces only two crops, wheat and flax. He looks upon crop production just as Henry Ford looks upon auto, airplane or rubber production.

John Bull's Family Troubles

Judging from press reports the British Empire is far from being a peaceful family and John Bull is having his troubles. The disturbances in India are of a serious character. The same week Canada delayed agreeing to the new arbitration treaty with the United States, thus blocking John Bull just when he was trying hard to show his friendship for Uncle Sam. Northern Ireland pounced on Eamon de Valera and arrested him thus reviving the passions of the Irish civil war just when John Bull thought they had been extinguished.

In Africa, Kenya colony shouted against the Hilton Young report which proposed closer union of the three Eastern African colonies. South Africa revealed its Dutch-English Indian population engaging in mutual recriminations as a prelude to a bitter political campaign. To cap it all the American naval program forces a steady expansion of British crusiers, and political conditions at home are in a turmoil.

Mexico Warns Newspapers

The President of Mexico has issued a final warning to the Mexican press that either the directors or those responsible for any publication which excites or tends to excite an altercation of the public order, or foment rebellion, will be energetically punished, because they have deliberately violated the law and are not properly using the liberty which the government offers them, but are guilty of the most unpatriotic abuse of freedom.

This warning was occasioned by comments on the recent bombing of the presidential train and because of continued activities of adherents of the Catholic church in resisting the registration laws.

American Marine

Both great political parties, Congress, the President and his Cabinet, business, industrial and financial leaders throughout the country all seem to be convinced that in the interest both of our overseas commerce and our national welfare, we must have a firstrate, privately owned and operated merchant marine.

Just what advantage such an institution would prove to the nation as a whole has never been satisfactorily demonstrated—except that certain ships would fly the American flag and in time of war might be pressed into service.

At the end of the war the United States owned some 2,500 ships. Some hundreds have been sold and several hundred remain in government hands. Of these, 235 are operating in 23 cargo lines out of gulf and Atlantic ports. About 400 are laid up in harbors, rusting in the tides. Cargo lines now operating will be reduced to 12 and the board will continue to offer its ships until it no longer has any to sell.

The shipping experiment has cost American taxpayers billions of dollars. It has been killed because of opposition to the government engaging in business. Big shippers patronize foreign lines and unless interested in owners will continue to do so. It has been an intolerable waste and a gigantic failure.

Leading to the World Court

Secretary Kellogg sent an identical note to each of the 24 governments adhering to the World Court protocol asking that they conduct an informal review among themselves with a view to admitting the United States as a member.

As the situation now stands a majority of the adhering members have not accepted No. 5 of the reservations which the United States Senate attached to the resolution of adherence. That reservation is all that prevents the United States from becoming a member of the court, the other reservations imposed by the Senate having been entirely approved by other nations.

Following closely upon the departure of Elihu Root to confer with European jurists regarding the revision of the World Court statute this action indicates that a way will be opened to accept the reservations and admit the United States. International investments will force the issue, sooner or later, and in all probability it will make little difference in the world's history in any event.

Henry Ford says: "there are 1,000,000 boys growing up in the United States who have never seen a saloon and who will never know the handicap of liquor." It would be 10 millions were it not for the "clink of the cash register".

Cuba eager for more American tourists is spending $75,000,000 building a 700-mile central highway from one end of the island to the other.

The Future of Coolidge

All of the speculation and discussion regarding President Coolidge's occupation now he's retired from office will make little difference with a man who has never been out of public office and never free from political influences. He has been a "safe" man because he listened to the best interests of his party. During his long experience in public office Mr. Coolidge has never been especially distinguished because of any individual initiative or independence of action. Just what he will do in the future is problematical, but unless tendered a life-job appointment the chances are that his original decision to "do a little whittling" will be his chief occupation. In any event he deserves, and can afford to enjoy his old age in peace and comfort.

Congress has approved a bill to provide Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the late President Wilson, with a pension of $5000 a year and a pension of $150 a month for Mrs. Leonard Wood, widow of General Wood.

Dramatic Senate Debate

The two ablest orators of the United States Senate argued the issue of prohibition in a dramatic debate in the chamber and never before, perhaps, were the contentions of the wet and dry viewpoints so clearly defined.

William E. Borah (R), Senator from Idaho, argued as he has ever insisted upon, the rigid maintenance of the Constitution and its supporting laws. The will of the majority, the inviolate integrity of the law, these were the bulwarks of his vigorous defense.

James A. Reed (D), Senator from Missouri, the wet, demanded the repeal of the law, the enforcement of which he excoriated with characteristic invective. He proposed a return to what he described as "state control" of the liquor question.

Not since the celebrated Webster-Haynes debate on the Constitution, 84 years ago, have two such oratorical giants locked horns on a public issue, and the debate attracted world-wide interest and attention.

BOONE COOPERAGE CO. ADDS NEW MACHINERY

The Boone Cooperage Co. has just installed a new machine, at a cost of several thousand dollars, to tongue-and-groove staves. With staves turned out from this machine, the cooper makes a sift proof slack barrel.

The installation of this equipment will add approximately $6000 to Grenada's annual payroll, according to W. D. Boone, manager of the plant.

"Cats that's meant for little boys to maul and tease is called Maultese cats. Some cats is reckernized by how quiet their purrs is, and these is named Purrsian cats. The cats what has very bad tempers is called Angorie cats, and cats with deep feelins is called Feline cats. I don't like cats."

GRIST MILL FACTS FOR FARMERS

About Cows and Dairying In Other States.

Hoard's Dairyman of Feb. 12, gives some cullings from its mail as to what is being done with cows and the results of dairying over the country. It may be worth some to Grenada County farmers and Sentinel readers:

Costs of producing 100 lbs. of milk varied from $1.56 to $3.18 on 60 farms in Illinois, according to a report of the Farm Management and Dairy Husbandry Departments, Uuniversity of Illinois. Cost of feed varied from 83 cents to $1.62 for producing 100 lbs. of milk. The average total cost of keeping a cow a year was $164.72 of which $83.66 was for feed.

At the Huntley Experiment Farm in Montana, cows fed entirely on alfalfa hay, silage, and roots were made to produce an average of 12,454 lbs. milk containing 453 lbs. fat.

A survey comparing the production of the daughters of co-operative bull association bulls with that of the dams of such daughters shows an increase of 13.5 per cent in milk and 14.4 per cent of fat for the daughters, according to J. C. McDowell of the Bureau of Dairy Industry.

The New York Experiment Station recommends the following calf meal mixture as a partial substitute for milk in rearing dairy calves: 500 lbs. yellow corn meal, 440 lbs. red dog flour, 300 lbs. oat flour, 300 lbs. linseed meal, 200 lbs. malted barley, 200 lbs. soluble blood flour, 20 lbs. calcium carbonate, 20 lbs. steamed bone meal, and 20 lbs. salt.

H. E. Erdman says in Circular 298 of the University of California that "Co-operative marketing associations cannot arbitrarily fix prices; that they cannot eliminate the middleman; and that they cannot cut costs greatly."

The U. S. Department of Agriculture tells us that the value of hogs destroyed by cholera in the United States has amounted to $65,000,000 in a single year, and that the average annual loss for a period of 40 years has been probably not less than $40,000,000.

Preventing Feed Flavors and Odors in Milk is the subject of Leaflet No. 25, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. When fed to dairy cows one hour before milking, silage made from corn, alfalfa, sweet clover, or soy beans; and green alfalfa, turnips, rape and kale seriously affect the flavor and odor of milk. Preventive measures suggested are: (1) Feeds that taint milk should be fed after milking; (2) Cows and barns should be kept clean; (3) Barns should be properly ventilated; (4) Aerate and cool milk as soon as drawn.

Three days' observation on 16 cows by Fuller of the New Hampshire Station, Durham, N. H., (Technical Bulletin 35), to find out how much urine and feces are voided daily, showed that the cows averaged 26.8 lbs. urine and 59 lbs. feces daily per 1000 lbs. live weight.

PICTURESQUE LANGUAGE MARKS SOLDIER'S LIFE

A language made up of expressions exclusively their own and incomprehensible to the civilian is in daily use by the American soldier in army barracks, aboard army transports, and in every corner of the world where regulars congregate, according to Lt. Col. Levi G. Brown, of the U. S. Army recruiting offices at Memphis, Tenn.

A new soldier has been called a "rookie" by civilians from time immemorial, but to seasoned doughboys he is a "John", says the recruiting officer. The genesis of this term, it is believed, came from the circus lots, where farmer, small-towner, and all gullible outsiders are dubbed "Johns". No one knows how the term passed from the big top to the army pup tent.

At West Point a new cadet during his first month is called a "beast", though civilians know him as a "plebe". To the barracks they occupy that month is applied the title "beast barracks".

An army bugler is always a "windjammer", and the regular band is known as the "boilermakers". "Hell cats" is West Point for the fife and drum corps that routs the cadets out for reveille.

Where the civilian requests his shopkeeper to "charge" it, the soldier says "jawbone", and this expressive and extensively used term denotes all forms of credit in the army. The day soldiers draw canteen checks, for which they pay at the end of the month, is called "jawbone payday".

"You're a gold brick", they jeer the soldier with a soft job. And, "quit goldbricking", the doughboy who shirks his share of duty is told. "Gold brick" is a term said to date from the time when mechanics, clerks and skilled artisans got extra money for their services and were let off from routine drills besides.

The American west and the whole open road produced the army title "buddy" to denote a soldier's best pal. A "buddy" sometimes is a "bunkie", which expression also comes from the cow country.

The Indian designation "buck" as a warrior who had yet to win his spurs in battle, the army now uses for a private not rated as a private first class.

Soldiers never "desert", at least not in the conversation of their comrades. "Go over the hill" is the army equivalent.

Millions of Americans are familiar with "K. P." for kitchen police. Not quite so well known is "hashmark" for service stripe, "hitch" for an enlistment, "re up" for reenlisting, and "butt" for a short period of time.

If soldiers hold their commanding officer in affection and esteem he is "the old man". A soldier who is active in quest of special favors is dubbed a "handshaker" or "mitt flopper". The rolling kitchen which an army column carries into the field is called the "slum gun", and the daily rations are familiarly known as "chow". If the mess sergeant fails to put out good "chow", he is criticized as a "belly robber".

When a non-commissioned officer—a "non-com."—is demoted for any reason he is said to receive a "bust". In the army the jail, or guardhouse, is the "mill".

In Panama, China, the Phillipines or any other place where the Volstead Act does not reign, when a soldier becomes a non-commissioned officer the custom of the service calls for a non-official "wetting of the stripes".

The stripes on the sleeve of the newly-made corporal or sergeant are, under this pleasant practice, "wet" over the bar while the new "non-com." signs the chit for those of his buddies whom he has invited to the ceremony.

"G. I." soldiers are those who appear bedecked in government issue uniforms that do not fit.

To the army man the whole civilian world is the outside. "Short timers"—soldiers nearing the end of their "hitches"—are constantly advised by older men—

"You won't like it on the outside, soldier".

Celebrates 9th Birthday

Vernon McFarland celebrated his ninth birthday last Saturday afternoon when his mother, Mrs. J. L. McFarland, entertained several of his little friends with a most delightful party at her home on Cherry Street. Each child presented a lovely gift to the honoree.

After many enjoyable games the guests were ushered into the dining room where a lovely birthday cake with nine pink candles burning on it decorated the center of the table. Easter chickens and rabbits served as place cards, and little celluloid horns were the favors presented each child. Delicious ice cream cones were served with the birthday cake, and pop corn balls were served later.

was over, they remained defiant of the weather to see the impressive tribute paid to the incoming head of the nation by representatives of nearly every grouping of American life. The army, the navy, the marine corps, the coast guard, governors, governors' staffs, patriotic organizations, marching clubs and bands tramped the wet, pool-studded pavements until late in the day to salute the new commander in chief.

He stood in a reviewing stand in front of the White House, glowing with pleasure, and by his side the new first lady of the land, animated with interest, waved her hand in numerous salutes.

When the parade ended and President Hoover entered his new home, its former occupant was speeding toward the quietness of Northampton, Mass., seeking the rest of a private citizen.

He had become former President Coolidge, but he took with him happy memories of the expressions of friendship showered upon him on his last day in office.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge did not remain in Washington for the inaugural parade. With President Hoover installed as chief executive of the nation, Mr. Coolidge entered an automobile with Mrs. Coolige, was driven to the Union Station, and boarded a train for the city where he started the career that led to the presidency.

Cheers rang in his ears as he departed, and there was a smile upon his usually stern countenance.
